

Abstract

The invention relates to a value document having a machine-readable authenticity mark. According to the invention the authenticity mark comprises a luminescent marking substance and a marking substance absorbing in the infrared spectral range.

Fig. 2